Office Hours: Wednesday 2-3 p.m.

Short description:

At the beginning of the 20th century, New Testament scholars could not agree upon one single sentence of the Gospel texts as an authentic statement of the historical Jesus. Some, like Rudolf Bultmann, were not sure he had ever been a historical figure. In contrast, Jewish scholars found little reason to doubt Jesus' historicity. This was not the only contribution of Joseph Klausner, David Flusser and Shmuel Safrai to the Historical Jesus research: The Jesus they discovered was also a Torah-observing Jew.

In class we will study the findings of Jewish and Christian New Testament scholars of the 20th century. We will read contemporary works of Christian and Jewish scholars emphasizing Jesus' belonging to a Jewish context as well as historians emphasizing his distinctiveness. We will discuss memories of Jesus and examine the current discourse about the "remembered" Jesus in interreligious perspective.
